A letter from your Class President:

Imagine you are moving to another house, another town, or even another state. As you pack up your belongings, you come across your high school yearbook. It looks a little beaten up; the pages might be faded; a few pages might even be ripped. You try to decide if it belongs in the "keep" box or the "trash" box. What should you do? All it takes to make the decision is to open the cover and look back in time to memories that will be with you for the rest of your life.

You begin with the senior class photos. As you scan the pictures, you see old relationships, arch enemies, treasured friends, and maybe even that kid you never talked to, but now kind of wished you had. You wonder what everyone is up to. Are they married? Do they have any children? Are they successful? After wondering, you start remembering. Memories spark the feelings of insecurity and curiosity when we all came in as freshmen. Remembering- when you made that first friend and the relief of knowing you finally had somewhere to sit at lunch- how much fun you had at the dances or sports events, or how happy you were just being with your friends. Memories also trigger the tragedy of losing three students in our senior year, and the compassion we showed as we came together to help fellow students with their loss.

You go through each page, and each one sets off a whirlwind of thoughts. You read your blurb and all of the memories you wrote have special meaning in some way. You glance at the superlatives and wonder if the class couple is still together of if that motor mouth who was voted "most talkative" ever shut up, (probably not). You laugh at some of the candids as you see your friends all dressed up for the prom, or caught off guard when they have a look of complete amazement as a flash goes off in their face.

The athletic section makes you remember that score you got in the final minutes of the game or the fun you had cheering on your friends. The faces of the Tri-County faculty bring to mind some of your favorite classes or even some of the ones you wish you had never taken.

Finally you come to the back. Friends signed your yearbook with their individual scrawls, and you remember how individual we all were, how each one of us contributed to the class in our own special way. At the same time, you remember how close we all really were. We may not have known each other, but we were still bound by the fact that we were a part of that specific senior class. We are the only ones who can say, that through it all we are the Tri-County graduating class of 1999. Remember that important fact when you come to that time in your life when you have to decide to keep this book or toss it. This book is our link to each other; this book holds us together and makes us a group that no one else can say they were a part of... the last Tri-County graduating class of the millennium. This book is a keeper, just like the high school memories you will have for the rest of your life. Good luck in the future;
I'll see you around.
